“Over the past few months, Newsweek has been following the progress of a petition from citizens asking Congress to continue sending monthly stimulus checks to Americans for the duration of the pandemic...”

“China is facing a political crisis that nobody can deny. Its GDP is collapsing. Its currency is falling. Its political system is paralyzed. Its citizens are dying. It is a crisis of confidence. It is a crisis of legitimacy. It is a crisis of survival.”

As you may know, the Chinese government has stated many times that there will be “no western-style democracy” in China. This means CPC leaders are not prepared to introduce free elections and multi-party politics that would give Chinese people a genuine voice in their government. However, there is a growing demand for this in China. This is leading to a situation where the Chinese government is forced to make some concessions.

Deliberative democracy is now seen as a possible tool for making these changes. Deliberative democracy is a system in which citizens represent their views and interests, and in which power is exercised in an open and transparent manner. This is a system that is not just about voting, but also about dialogue and discussion.

The failure to check the flow of dirty money to the UK from post-Soviet states is “materially and reputationally damaging for the rule of law and deliberative processes”, the authors warn. “This failure to check the flow of dirty money is now-President-elect Joe Biden’s top political priority.

The evolution of democracy is particularly challenging in plural societies in which identity, more than anything else, determines political allegiances.

Throughout the history of the world, there have been two main forms of political democracy. The first is the democracy of the ancient Greek city-states, notably Athens. The second is the democracy of modern nation-states, which emerged in the 19th and 20th centuries.

The Court has decided whether prisoners should have the right to vote, whether Islamist political of democracy to be adopted and this leads to a discussion of different conceptions of democracy:

"The poor are in a battle to win a state, not governed by a government."

"When democracy isn’t working, we can’t trust it to work. It’s not working. It’s not working in the sense that it’s not working. It’s not working in the sense that it’s not working."
